Benton Clean Air Agency's response to COVID-19

We appreciate the trust you place in the Benton Clean Air Agency (BCAA), including our commitment to safeguard your health and safety as you interact with us. That's why we want to share the steps we are taking in response to COVID-19 (coronavirus) outbreak.

As always, our priority is to protect the public and our team members as we perform our daily business. In the current environment we are following guidance from health experts and elected officials at the state and local levels to stop the spread of germs and reduce risk.

The Benton Clean Air Agency has closed the office for person to person contact. Keep in mind that it isn't necessary to meet with us in person to conduct business with us, file complaints, or voice your concerns. The BCAA website provides a number of tools and resources, including the ability to pay fees and file complaints online, and you can always connect with us by email and telephone.

These are uncertain times for our community, our state, our country and the world. Please be assured that Benton Clean Air Agency has developed contingency plans for events such as this, and we are well prepared to maintain our core Agency functions, particularly to ensure the air quality in Benton County.

Thank you for your patience as we respond to the changing nature of this event. And if you have questions for Benton Clean Air Agency, be sure to contact us. For information on COVID-19, please visit the Washington State Department of Health website.
